

Housing coalition unveils new Web site

WOLFEBORO — The Eastern Lakes Region Housing Coalition (ELRHC) is proud to announce the unveiling of its newly redesigned and updated web site.

The growth of the ELRHC's community education and outreach efforts and the need to provide more information in a timely fashion to the public were key factors behind the organization's decision to upgrade its web presence. Their new web site can be accessed at www.ELRHC.org and now provides more information on current projects the organization is working on as well as details about the CDIP program – a tax-incentive donation program that is unique to New Hampshire. The new web site provides the ELRHC with the ability to add new content to their Web site in real-time.

The new design was completed free of charge by ELRHC board member James Fontaine, owner of Positively Creative Solutions, LLC. He states, "It is important that the ELRHC be represented in as professional a manner as possible in order to reflect the tremendous work and value that the ELRHC is providing to our communities."

The Eastern Lakes Region Housing Coalition was established as a non-profit corporation in 2005. Its board of directors is composed of individuals representing community, business, health, construction, and education entities from the rural towns east of Lake Winnepesaukee. The goal of the ELRHC is to create a diversity of housing in our region to ensure that all of our friends, neighbors, and family members can find affordable housing in their own communities. For more information, you may visit the new web site at www.ELRHC.org.

Positively Creative Solutions, LLC, located in Alton, provides internet technology and business development consulting services including full-service web site design and e-commerce development. For more information, you may visit their web site at www.PCSWebDesign.com.